

Welcome dear readers (Lovely board 15.0 of S.A. Proto)

First of we start with a little trip down memory lane of my proto-life. I always found myself very welcome in the proto-community, from day 1 of kick in. Probably this mainly comes through one of my personal beliefs, that to focus really hard (School/Work), you also should an equal amount of stress-relief. For me I found this in spending time with friends and the lovely proto-community. Then I wanted to contribute something to this lovely association that gave me a feel of homecoming (even when I barely knew anyone). So I decided I want to help improve the education for next years so I joint the EducaCie. Not because I wanted to complain. Not because I wanted to be active in Proto. Because I wanted to improve the education to make people will get the same feeling of homecoming at our lovely study Creative Technology. However later I realized that improving your university experience is far more then only improving the part for what we are all here, Education. So that makes me want to do board: To give the lovely people of proto a wonderful time of studying that is not only focussed on education, but also on surviving studying.

Then now we had why I want to be board, now I am going to focus on what a board year is going to bring me.

If I am going to be board, my biggest area for improvement will be to lay contact with people outside my friend group. Especially when doing a board year, I think you can learn this very well, because you also have to contact other boards and maybe companies. So this will bring me improved social skills in professional and non-professional setting.

Also, something I hope to learn from a board year is improving my skills on working in a team. Something I would say I can already do well but always can improve on. This skill is for me a crucial life's skill because, no matter what you are going to do you will always need to work with someone. Because together you can clear bigger obstacles then alone, which makes it easier to live your life. One of the most important things of working in a team is discovering also more about yourself. How can I best excel to make this the best teamwork ever, without hurting the potentials of others? This will bring me the improvement of one of the most important lifeskills

Kind Regards,
Lars Gerritsen
